ARCHBISHOP SEGHERS

Killed by his Own Attendant, Bro. Fuller.

The Murderer Insane—Father Tassi's Account.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Archbishop C. J. Seghers was murdered on the Yukon, November 28th last, by his attendant, Brother Fuller. The murderer will be arrested by Capt. Healy, of the U. S. steamer Bear, and brought to trial at Sitka. He is believed to be demented. The scene of the tragedy was on the bank of Yukon river, about 500 miles from its month and fully 60 miles from any human habitation, and the murderer is Frank Fuller, a young man from Portland, Oregon, who accompanied the Bishop as servant and companion.

Father Tassi, Bishop Segher's assistant in the evangelical work of the north, was seen by a reporter at St. Ignatius this afternoon in relation to the death of Bishop Seghers. "It was a year ago last month," said Father Tassi, "that Bishop Seghers asked me to bring Fuller with me to Alaska. I had known Fuller several years. He was a watchmaker in Portland for two or three years, but in 1881 he went to Washington Territory. He drifted to the Cœur de Alene Mission, where I saw him in 1883. He went to Spokane Falls from there, and I met him with the Fathers at that place a year ago last March. He was very anxious to join me in my Alaska work, and asked several times to be allowed to go. The Bishop told me to bring him along. We started from Victoria on the 13th of July a year ago, the Bishop, Fuller and I. We went by water to Juneau. We then formed our party and went to Chilcat from there, where we had our things carried across the mountains by Indians to the head waters of the Yukon. We built a boat there and started down the Yukon. We arrived on the 7th of September at the mouth of Stewart River. Here, after a time, the Bishop left me with another priest to carry on the work among the Stickeen Indians. The Bishop with Fuller and the Indians, proceeded down the river. We heard nothing more of them till we reached Fort Yukon, about the middle of June, and we then learned that the Bishop was dead. From one of the Indian boys who was with the Bishop I learned the particulars of the murder. "On the seventh day of the journey (it was the 27th November), according to the boy's story, Fuller became morose and quarrelsome. They were about thirty miles from Noulato. Towards night Fuller asked the Bishop to make camp. The Bishop consulted the Indians, who advised against camping there and said that an Indian camp with a number of Indian houses could be found a few miles farther on. The Bishop told Fuller that the Indians knew better than they could, and he should follow their advice. Fuller complained that more attention was paid to the Indians than to him. He talked so much about it that the Indians carried his words to the Bishop. "Never mind," said the Bishop, "you know better than we." They went on to the camp and made their bed. All slept together in a line. Fuller was first to get up; it was between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning. He got some sticks ready for fuel, but sat down opposite the Bishop without lighting them. The Indian at the end of the line rose and heard Fuller say, "Bishop, get up." The Bishop lifted his head and half rose when he saw Fuller with a rifle levelled at him. As Fuller fired, he clasped his arms across his breast and bowed his head. The bullet struck him squarely on the forehead and he never spoke. The muzzle was so close to him that his face was power-burned. All this happened so quickly that the Indian was not able to do anything, but when Fuller began to reload he sprang upon him and seized his gun, shouting to his companions that Fuller was going to murder them all. 'No,' says Fuller, 'I meant to kill only the Bishop.' The Indians arranged the body as well as they could, and went with Fuller to Noulato. Fuller accompanied the body to St. Michael's and offered to give himself up. A warrant will be taken back for his arrest, and he will be taken to Sitka and tried. He confesses his crime freely, and cries about it. We have kept the witnesses at St. Michael's. They will appear at the trial."

HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL.

From Rev. Father Van Nevel THE TIMES this morning gleaned the following relative to the life and work of the late Archbishop. In beginning the narrative the Father said that of the Brother (Fuller) who had perpetrated the vile deed he knew but little, and therefore could say little about him. He was under the impression, however, that the trials and privations the party had to endure in the far-off lonely land were of such a character as to dethrone the reason of the man charged with taking the life of the much respected head of the church in this city. Preparations were about to be made to extend a cordial welcome to His Lordship on his return from the perilous trip he had so bravely undertaken. He was expected to return either this or next month at the furthest. The latest heard from him at the Palace was in November. The letter was dated at Salmon River on the 31st of August. He was then on his way with the Jesuit Fathers and the brother (Fuller) to the mines in the interior of the country. The object of his trip was to select stations wherein to locate missions. In these he was to place Father Tosi and Father Robaut. Fuller was a Jesuit brother; had only taken certain vows, but none of the orders. He also was to have been stationed at some point to be selected for him by His Grace.

We learn that the subject of this memoir was born in 1839 in Ghent, Belgium. So that he was in his 49th year. In his early youth he displayed a studious disposition and evinced a desire to be taken into holy orders by the church. At college his progress was marked by all the professors, while his career was an exceptionally brilliant one. He attended the University of Loursin in Belgium, where, in 1863, he was ordained into the priesthood. In the fall of that year he left the land of his birth and youth for the far west—the American Pacific Coast being his destination, and in November of that year

HE REACHED VICTORIA.

At once he began to labor assiduously in the work assigned him. His health, however, was not the most robust, and gradually the arduous work began to tell on his delicate constitution. In 1869 Bishop Demares took him to Rome as his secretary, whilst His Lordship was attending Œcunemical Council to be held that year in the Holy City. In 1870 he returned with the Bishop, but not in improved health. He suffered severely from hemorrhage of the lungs. On the 28th July, 1871, when His Lordship Bishop Demeares died, Father Seghers was so low that his life was despaired of. The news of the death of the Bishop to the young Father and the future successor of His Lordship was so sudden and unexpected that it produced another attack of hemorrhage. This was the last occasion on which that trouble baffled him up to the period of his death. He gradually recovered and in 1873 was selected by His Holiness Pope Pius the IXth as Bishop of Vancouver Island. His consecration took place on the 20th of June in that year, and from that day forwarded he devoted himself assidnously to his arduous labors. In 1874 he took a trip up the West Coast of the Island for the purpose of selecting localities for missionaries as stations for the prosecution of mission work amongst the Indian tribes. In this mission he was successful for several mission stations are to be met with now, which owe their origin to this trip. Being desirous of still furthering the work of the church to a greater extent he, in 1877, went north to Alaska and penetrated far into the interior of that country, where he wintered. In September, 1878, he reached Victoria on his return trip, where he was warmly welcomed by the people of his flock. Whilst in San Francisco that fall he learned of his appointment as a co-adjutator to Archbishop Blanchet of Portland, Oregon. He then returned to Victoria and arranged all matters in connection with the church and took his departure for the future scene of his labors in American territory. This was on the 30th of June, 1879. In 1881 Archbishop Blanchet resigned and was succeeded by Bishop Seghers, who now became Archbishop of Portland. In 1883, His Grace along with many other Archbishops in America, was to prepare matters for the Plenary Council which was shortly to be held in Baltimore, Md. Whilst in the Holy City, Cardinal Livieoni, Perfect of the Propoganda, spoke to him about the difficulty they were experiencing of procuring a person in every way suitable for the office of Bishop for Vancouver Island, and who also would look after the interests of the church in Alaska, which now was regarded as an important field for mission work. Archbishop Seghers was always attached to his first charge and flock. Their well being was ever dear to him. The See of Victoria was now considered to be an important one. He at once volunteered to accept of the position so strongly urged upon him by the Cardinals and other church dignitaries at Rome. He resigned the Portland See much to the regret of his admirers in that city and State, and in 1884 was selected by His Holiness as Archbishop of Vancouver and Alaska. He was delighted on getting back amongst a people he had known so long and whom he admired and loved so well—a feeling which was reciprocated by not only his own co-religionists, but by all classes in this community. In consideration for his spirit of self abnegation and great personal sacrifice His Holiness conferred on Archbishop Seghers all the power and insignia of an Archbishop, although Victoria was only but an Episcopal See.

After the Plenary Council at Baltimore, and which His Grace attended, he made a tour of the Eastern States, lecturing in the interest of his diocese, and with much acceptance to all who were so fortunate as to listed to his eloquence and praise of this coast. His return to Victoria on the 1st of April, 1885, will still be fresh in the memory of the majority of our citizens, to take possession of his See, and the warm, hearty welcome extended him by all classes of citizens. He then set to work earnestly and energetically to build which graces Yates street, near the Cathedral. The work of carrying to completion the palace was vigorously carried on that year so that on the 10th of April, 1886, it was completed and consecrated and a reception held therein on that evening which was attended by hundreds of our citizens. On the 30th of May following, His Grace received from the hands of His Holiness the Pallium of the Church, one of the insignias of the office of Archbishop. The ceremony it will be remembered was a most imposing one, there being present a large gathering of the Bishops of the episcopal province, as well as Fathers and priests and distinguished members of the church, who heaped their congratulations on His Grace for the exalted position to which he had now attained.

LEAVES FOR ALASKA.

On the 13th of July last, after having arranged all the affairs of the See, and commending his people here to the care of Almighty God, and invoking his blessing on the church and the work on which he was about to enter, His Grace took his departure for the far north and its almost impenetrable wilds. To the wharf he was accompanied by the members of his clergy and a large number of prominent citizens, all of whom wished him a God speed and a safe journey in his perilous undertaking, and expressed the hope of his early return. Little was it thought that this would be the last occasion on which they would exchange greetings with one they had learned to love and honor so well, and that never again would he impart to them kind words of wisdom and heavenly counsel. The sequel is told in the dispatch which appears above. To-day there is a general feeling of profound sorrow and regret for the tragic and untimely death of one all were expecting to behold again in a few weeks at most, and to hear from his own lips of the mysterious and unknown lands and country reached far away to the Arctic circle to the north of the land of the midnight sun. His voice for many months has been hushed in perpetual silence. From one view he is gone, and the place that once knew him will know him no more forever.

THE LATE ARCHBISHOP

was descended from a very respectable and influential Belgian family. He was a member of 8 boys and girls, all whom died in early life of that fearful disease—consumption. His Grace always believed that he too would follow in their footsteps at a certain period of his life. The repeated attacks of hemorrhage upon him he regarded as a message of what was likely to follow shortly thereafter. Yet he clung to the hope that his life might be spared him in order that he might accomplish some good amongst the Indians of the West and North coast of America. This was the object he had in view when he first came to this country—that at least five years were still left him wherein to labor in the Master's vineyard. The spiritual welfare of the Indian to him always was a source of serious thought. He was a close reader, a clever student and a profound thinker. Wherever he traveled or went he carried with him a supply of the works of the leading authors of the day. His private and personal means he devoted to the diocese for the purpose of procuring a library of the works of the most prominent authors. By his clergy he was venerated, esteemed and highly respected in every sense. His wise and judicious counsel encouraged them in their arduous labors, whilst his example and zeal upheld them in the many hardships they were called upon to encounter for their Master's sake. He never flinched from any work or duty no matter how hard or unpleasant.

HIS LAST WORK.

It is known that his last and greatest work, and which was the ambition of his whole life, was the erection of a house for worship in this city—Cathedral in style as well as in name—worthy the great master to whom it was to be dedicated, the church and the City of Victoria. He had arranged a programme for a tour of the east in the interest of such an edifice. Alas! however, all these expectations were in vain, for man may propose, but God alone disposes. Thus passed away another great and a good man from our midst—a land mark which it will be most difficult to replace—regretted and mourned by a horror-stricken community at his tragic end.

THE REMAINS.

It is the intention of the clergy here, as well as others of the diocese, to make an effort to bring the remains from their present resting place, which is a lonely spot, far remote from human beings and civilization, to Victoria, for interment beside those of the late Bishop Demeares. The sympathy and co-operation of the American Fur and Trading Company will be evoked with this object in view. In consequence of the isolation of the locality, its great distance from the coast, and the difficulty of reaching it, some time may elapse ere this is accomplished. Meantime the many friends and admirers of the late Archbishop Seghers will utter the devout prayer that sweet repose and perfect peace may be that of his remains in their far off resting place.

HIGH MASS.

This morning the Cathedral was filled with an attentive and sorrow stricken congregation who had assembled to celebrate High Mass for the repose of the soul of the deceased prelate. The services, which were most solem and impressive, were conducted by the following reverend gentlemen: Father Mandart, celebrant; Father Nicolaye, deacon; Father Verbeke, sub-deacon; Father Van Nevel, master of ceremonies. The Sisters of St. Ann conducted the musical services in the choir.

The Very Rev. Father Jonckau, who has charge of the affairs of the diocese, was absent in Sooke yesterday and to-day. He was expected back some time in the afternoon. The news of the death of the Archbishop to him will be a sad blow. On his arrival a council will be held and a time will be appointed for the proper observance of a period of mourning, and other solemnities connected with the Archbishop's death.

CANADA ABROAD.

Canadian Marksmen at the Wimbledon Meeting.

A London dispatch of the 14th gives the result of the Wimbledon shooting match. The second and third ranges of the first stage were fired that day by nearly all, the firing being at 500 and 600 yards, seven shots to each. The highest possible score was 70. Private Gillies, of the 90th battalion, Winnipeg, lead in these ranges with a score of 61. In the Heath competition, the highest possible score being 100, Sergt. C. N. Mitchell, of the 90th Winnipeg, lead with a score of 90 points. The range was at 500 yards. In the Alexandria competition £1,000, seven shots each, at 500 and 600 yards, prizes £6 each, prizes were secured, after some very keen shooting, by Private Gamble, of the 45th East Durham, Lieut. Hooper, of the 82nd, Prince Edward Island, and Lieut. Cartwright, of the 47th Kingston. In the Alfred competition, £400, seven shots, at 200 yards, Lieut. Cartwright captured a prize.

OUR LOCAL CRACK SHOTS.

On Saturday last a shooting match took place at Clover Point between the members of No. 3 battery. The first-class competition ranges were at 200, 400 and 500 yards, seven shots at each range. The possible score at each range being 35, and the total 105. Following is the scores made:

	200	400	500	Total	Prizes
1 Gr F G Sargison	34	27	25	86	$15 00
2 Bom G P Ridley	30	26	25	81	12 50
3 Gr E Fleming	28	27	22	77	10 00
4 Gr J C Maclure	25	26	23	74	7 50

7 Gr H Fleming	20	23	19	68	5 00
9 Gr F C Woltenden	25	18	21	65	5 00

There was quite a stiff breeze from the right, otherwise the day was fine. The second class competition will come off on Saturday next if the B. C. R. A. matches are finished in time.

The Tea Traffic.

The international traffic in tea presents some very interesting features of late since the Canadian Pacific Company has entered the field as a competitor with its trans-Pacific steamers. Since May the latter have carried more tea by steamer and made faster time than the steamers connecting with the Central Pacific. The last large shipments of tea by the two rival lines were on June 20th, when the steamer Parthia left Yokohama for Port Moody and the City of Sydney left the same port for San Francisco. The former arrived at Port Moody July 3rd with 35,472 packages of tea, 18,698 of which were for New York and 8,987 for Chicago. The City of Sydney arrived three days later with 22,018 packages, of which 8,091 were for New York and 7,792 for Chicago. The odds are in favor of our National highway.

He Denies It.

A few days ago several of the eastern papers gave Mr. Van Horne as authority for the statement that the Mayors of Toronto, Montreal and London would be knighted. Mr. Van Horne has authoritatively stated that he never said any thing of the kind.

Winnipeg's Jubilee.

At the Winnipeg regatta on the 15th inst., ten thousand people were present on the banks of the Red river. The races resulted disastrously to the Winnipeg crews, the Americans winning every race in which they rowed. It was a big surprise to the Winnipegers.

ENGLISH POLITICS.

The Crimes Bill Passed—Reform Reaction.

The Bulgarian Throne—Egyptian Muddle.

ENGLISH POLITICS.

LONDON, July 19.—The cabinet met again to-day to discuss amendments to the land bill offered by the Liberal-Unionists.

At the election in Basingstoke division, Hampshire, to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation to the peerage of G. Sclater, Booth, Conservative, was elected, receiving 3158 against 2426 for Erg, Liberal. The Conservative vote shows a falling off of 600 and the Liberal vote a gain of 100.

THE LAND BILL.

LONDON, July 19.—At a meeting of the Conservatives held to-day in the Carlton club, it was decided if general hostility should be manifested in the House of Commons against the bankruptcy clause of the Irish land bill, the Government would find a substitute for it. Some difference of opinion was developed as to the advisability of meddling with Irish rents, but it was finally decided to provide for a reduction on a sliding scale.

The Marquis of Salisbury informed the assemblage that the differences between the Liberal Unionists and the Government in regard to the Land Bill had been satisfactorily adjusted, concessions having been made which removed the chief objections that had been entertained by Chamberlain and his friends. The Government had also decided to authorize the land commissioners to reconsider within a certain period rents of holdings proved to have been affected by the fall in prices of produce and cattle. The meeting favors an early prorogation of parliament, expediting the passage of the Land Bill and Allotments Bill, and the devotion of the remainder of the session to a consideration of the Supply Bill, so that the adjournment might take place not later than the third week in August.

PRINCE FERDINAND.

LONDON, July 19.—Sir James Ferguson, Parliamentary Secretary of Foreign Affairs, stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that the question of assent of the powers to the election of Prince Ferdinand to the Bulgarian throne will not arise until after the Sultan had sanctioned the election, and the Sultan's sanction has not been given to it. Concerning the Anglo-Turkish-Egyptian convention, Sir James said no negotiations were proceeding. Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, British special envoy, not having given England's ratification, no withdrawal of ratification could take place.

The Commons went formally in a body to the House of Lords this afternoon, where the royal assent was given to the Irish Crimes' Act and the amendment bill and the two were this p. m. made the law of the realm.

IRONCLADS COLLIDE.

LONDON, July 19.—A collision occurred at Spit Head to-day between the British Ironclads Ajax and Devastation. The Ajax was considerably damaged and is leaking fast.

BANKRUPT.

Brinkworth, corn merchant of Bristol, is bankrupt; liabilities, $250,000.

James G. Blaine and Andrew Carnegie, attended the unveiling at Dunfermline to-day of a monument of Alexander III., who reigned in Scotland from 1249 to 1286. They drove to the spot in a four horse coach, and were well received.

TOURISTS LOST.

GENEVA, July 19.—There has been severe snow storms in Swiss Alps. Six tourists, including three sons of the director of Zaurich college, have been lost on the Jung Frau. Several parties were sent out in an endeavor to rescue them but their efforts were unsuccessful.

TOWNS DESTROYED.

ELPASO, July 19.—On the heels of the earthquake at Bavaispe come the details of a still greater calamity at Bacanic town, twenty-miles from Bavaispe. It had before the eastrophe 1200 inhabitants; when Bavaispe was destroyed Bacanic was badly shaken, and since then the town has been visited by a succession of shocks that reduced it to ruins. Most of the people escaped, as they had fled the country terror-stricken on the first disturbance.

GENEVA, July 19.—The missing tourists were all Swiss. They were endeavoring to make the ascent of Jung Frau without guides.

AMERICAN NEWS.

STORM IN BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, July 19.—The storm yesterday afternoon was followed by another of almost equal force this morning. Several houses in Cumberland were struck by lightning and uncocted, Harlam Park, the most beautiful resort in the city, this morning presents a scene of desolation. Uncocted houses are to be seen all over the western section of the city, and the aggregate damage is heavy, though individual losses are small.

STRUCK ON A REEF.

POINT ARENA, July 19.—The steam schooner Alcasar struck on Rough and Ready Reef at 4 this morning. She lost her propeller, stern post and rudder and will be towed to San Francisco to-day.

Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent free on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King street West, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Standard.

A LONG CHASE.

Crime and Flight of an English Naval Officer—Tell Tale Writing.

Private information has been received from Kansas that on the 13th inst., W. H. W. Markham, assistant paymaster of H. M. S. Espoir, had been there arrested for forging the name of his superior officer for amounts aggregating about $15,000. The crime was committed over a year ago, when the Espoir was cruising off the coast of China. For some time Markham, under the name of Gaylor, has been acting as agent at Kansas City for a well known insurance company. He has been constantly shadowed night and day since June 13th, until this morning, the detectives being unwilling to arrest him until the papers and other preliminaries had been first arranged. Though the culprit's whereabouts have been known only since the 13th, detectives have unceasingly been tracing him up, step by step. The evidence of the forgeries was discovered in the spring of 1886.

A LONG CHASE.

The story of the long chase forms a marvelous record. Markham left his ship ostensibly for Yucatan, and all clew to him had been lost before his misdeeds came to light, and the case was formally handed over to the Scotland Yard detectives. Meantime Markham was in Shanghai, where he was spending money with a prodigality worthy of an East Indian Rajah.

PRETTY GUSSIE BLAND.

It was in Shanghai that he fell in love with an American adventuress named Gussie Bland, who had just arrived from San Francisco and who was traveling as Mrs. Deforest. Upon her Markham lavished nearly everything he had, and when, soon after, he became aware that the officers were searching him out, he had barely enough funds to bring himself to San Francisco. So nervous was he on the way over that he attracted the attention of a San Francisco officer who was on another errand. Had the San Francisco officers been notified Markham could have easily been arrested then, as he was steadily in view for several days, but no charges being known against him he was allowed to depart. Gussie Bland returned to California on almost the next steamer after Markham. She went to Los Angeles, but when the British officials had finally located her they learned that no one answering to Markham's description had been near her.

THE FIRST CLEW.

Nevertheless, her home was watched month after month, until by accident one day a detective noticed the address of a letter mailed to one of the woman's intimates at a saloon near by. The handwriting seemed familiar and a comparison with a photograph of the signature on a San Francisco hotel register showed the writer to be Markham. A close investigation established the fact that Markham sent Gussie frequent letters from some distant city. Officers in disguise thereupon inveigled themselves into Mrs. Deforest's graces, and one night, when champagne had loosened her tongue, the officers got her talking of her mysterious correspondent. She ridiculed him mercilessly, as an Englishman who had thrown away a fortune on her, and was still as infatuated as ever, and incidentally dropping an intimation that he was then in Kansas City.

ARRANGING FOR THE ARREST.

Immediately an arrangement was made by the detective whereby the clerk at the post office window in Kansas City was to drop a pencil outside the counter as the signal when Markham asked for his letters. So confused did the clerk become that twice he failed and Markham escaped. The third time the detective was given the signal. Markham was intensely suspicious and had acquired the habit of starting in the opposite direction from which he intended to go, and then suddenly taking the street-cars, going the wrong way and jumping off to take the car he wanted, all the time watching to see if he were pursued. In spite of these tactics he was shadowed constantly, and when all was ready the arrest was made, and he will be started on the road to England and a long term of penal servitude.

VICTORIA HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—From time to time there is a cry out for government grants to improve the harbor, yet I have never heard of any definite plan to do so. In the meantime, all the town sewerage goes into the harbor, causing an abominable stench and filling it up. So the first thing to do is to carry the sewerage outside. And as Esquimalt harbor is most likely to be the principal open harbor of the future, some scheme, such as lock gates at Laurel Point, with wharves outside for daily steamers, should be kept in mind as an object to be desired. This would cause the harbor and arm to become a fine sheet of steady level fresh water, where all kinds of vessels could lay without fouling, besides giving many other advantages such as fresh water for all kinds of manufacturing purposes, etc.

CAPTAIN.

B. C. Rifle Association.

The fourteenth annual prize meeting of the B. C. Rifle Association will commence to-morrow (Wednesday), and the matches will be opened in due form at 11 a. m. Complete arrangements have been made for carrying on the meeting, and the shooting will be under the superintendence of Lieut. Lang, R. E. It is expected that a large number of volunteers will be present, as well as men of the Royal Navy and city and members of the association. The prize list embraces twelve competitions, comprising valuable challenge cups and money prizes, nearly all of which are open to members of the association. Since the publication of the prize list, Mr. E. C. Baker, M. P., President of the Association, has presented a very handsome silver cup for competition at the meeting. The cup to be the property of the competitor winning it this year. It has been placed with the first prizes in the grand aggregates, thus increasing the value of the prize to be won by the fortunate competitor who may lead the shooting. A pool target will also be provided, at which any rifle may be used; distance, 200 yards, ten cents a shot. Three-fourths of the daily entries will be divided amongst the holders of bull's-eye tickets. The ladies are allowed to shoot at the pool target, and rifles will be provided to any who may require them. Should the present fine weather continue our marksmen will be reasonably fortunate, and we confidently expect to hear of some phenomenal scores being made.

THE QUEEN'S SUBJECTS.

There is hardly any community in the world where the question of nationality should excite so much interest as in our good city of Victoria, for here we have almost every race and every color; and every prejudice attached rightly or wrongly to race and color. We have Indians, and half-breeds, and quarter-breeds; we have Chinese in great abundance, and it is said some of the good pious Presbyterians at St Andrew's were startled out of their propriety last Sunday morning when the Rev. Mr. McLaon ventured in loud and audible words to pray for their ultimate salvation by proper and usual Christian methods. We have negroes from various countries and we have every possible variety of the white skined race, from the natives of Alaska to those of the sunny lands of Australia. But withal we are controlled and governed and managed by subjects of Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, and therefore we are all interested in a discussion that has just taken place in the old country as to the name by which such subjects should be called. A money prize has been offered by Truth for a name which would describe a subject of the Queen who may have been born in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Canada, or Australia, the award has been made; and what do our readers think it is? The difficulties to be overcome were very great. What was wanted was such a word as "German," which of itself describes one who may be Bavarian or Prussian, or Saxon or Hanoverian, but no such phrase exists, and the want of it has been commented upon for many years, and very recently has been debated at the Colonial conference in London.

We have in our midst in Victoria Mr. WARD, Mr. DRAKE and Mr. Mayor FELL, who are merely English; we have Sir MATTHEW BEGBIE, Mr. DUNSMUIR and Mr. RITHET, who are very Scotch, and the word "Briton" would describe any one of these gentlemen. But their the difficulty comes in, for when we get to another nationality we cannot use any word to describe it.

Judge ELLIOTT and Mr. CROASDAILE are not Britons any more than if they had been imported here from Lubuan or Sierra Leone. Is it then not advisable that some phrase should be invented that would bring them up to the level of Britons? The other gentlemen named can sing "Britannia rules the waves" and "Britons never shall be slaves," but Mr. ELLIOTT and Mr. CROASDAILE cannot join even in the chorus. No amount of flattery could persuade Mr. WARD or Mr. DRAKE, or Mr. FELL that they were Scotch, nor could any one presume so very far as to call Sir MATTHEW or Mr. DUNSMUIR, or Mr. RITHET, English; still as we have said, the one word "Briton" describes them; but Mr. ELLIOTT and Mr. CROASDAILE are Irish and nothing more, so the question is what word or phrase would describe any of these three nationalities without particularly saying English, Irish or Scotch.

Still further, how are we to describe the Hon. Mr. ROBSON or Mr. HIGGINS, who are Canadians or Canucks; or how describe Mr. GEORGE BYRNES who is Australian? En passant it may be remarked that those of us who are born Canadians are in a somewhat humiliating and unenviable position, and might almost be called mongrel. In our own census papers the word "Canadian" is not allowed in the columns describing the nationality of those who may have been born in our country, but we are referred back sometimes for four generations to find some respectable country from which our father's family has come. In one case a young lady known to the present writer, whose mother, grand-mother, and great grand-mother were Scotch, whose father, grand-father and great grand father had been born in Canada, had to describe herself as "German," because the word "Canadian" is not recognized among civilized nationalities. Thus in Mr. ROBSON'S case, though born in Canada, he will be described as Scotch and Mr. HIGGINS as Irish in the census columns.

It will thus be seen that the want of a phrase to describe subjects of the Queen wherever born, is imperatively needed. Hundred and hundreds of answers have been sent to Truth, some good, some bad, some stupid, some intelligent. "Briton" won't do, nor any cognate term such as "Britisher," or "Britannic," though all possible variations of "Briton" have been submitted for the prize. Ingenious writers have suggested "Englishmen," "Albs," "Albions," "Guelph," "Guelphians," "Occanists," "Columbians," "Angles," "Victorians," "Atlantics," &c., &c., &c.; and now after weeks of researches, of guesses, and of suggestions, the prize has been given and we are all to be called "Georgians." "Dost thou like the picture?" The editor of Truth gives no reasons, like a wise judge, for the decision he has arrived at; but the question has been thoroughly debated, and no more suitable name to include us all seems to be forthcoming.

CUSTOMS REGULATIONS.

Everywhere in Canada the signs are evident of great dissatisfaction amongst importers with certain phases of the customs law, and frequently also with the manner in which it is administered. It is held that some of the proceedngs are antiquated as well as cumbersome, and the complaint is frequent that the honest importer is too often placed on a par with the common smuggler, and treated as if he were a conspirator, whose aim is to evade the tariff. This, many hold, is not the way to bring the importing fraternity into line with the authorities whose avocation it is to carry out the law governing a tariff universally admitted to be difficult of administration. There exists a system of informing, under which, apparently "a man is treated as a rascal until he can prove himself honest." Merchants are charged with under valuation for customs' purposes; special agents testify against them and are rewarded for so doing. Then the merchant has to submit to an arbitrary dictum from headquarters which ignores or over-rides any advantage he may have secured in the way of prices or terms. And this, we are told, or left to infer, is done for the "protection" of the Canadian manufacturer. Many have looked to see passed, during the last session of Parliament a measure of relief from this sort of oppression in the direction indicated by the Minister of Customs many months ago. But it has not come. As a protest against the system and in order, if possible, to obtain relief from it, the merchants of Montreal are forming an Importers' Protective Association which will resist what it deems the improper restrictions and fines imposed by the customs' laws. The Toronto Monetary Times goes so far as to say that it "has been demonstrated to us that exporters and manufacturers in Britain and France were made aware days before the intelligence reached Toronto or Hamilton that the changes made recently in the tariff would not be put in force until a certain day. There can be no excuse for this. It is also alleged that certain importers in Canada secured intelligence of the nature and date of tariff changes in advance of their rivals. For this, if true, the Customs' Department may be in no way responsible, yet there is reason to think that such unfair "leakage" exists. We hear, too, of a case in which certain firms or other importers of twine, two in number, obtained their importations of gilling twine free, while another had to pay 25 per cent. duty, under exactly similar circumstances. It is such instances of favoritism that rankle in the breasts of importers."

THE LAND AND THE PEOPLE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—In what purported to be an editorial in the Colonist last Thursday, but which was really a reprint, Henry George's Fallacies were treated in a most unfair manner. Even the quotations from George's "Progress and Poverty," though egregiously garbled, were a plain rebuttle of the main assumption of the reprint, for presumably the object of these quotations was to show that Mr. George advocated a general division of the land. The reprint bears internal evidence that the Colonist writer never read "Progress and Poverty," and evidently the artful penny-a-liner who wrote for the Forum did so for "filthy lucre," with the intent of garbling, to enable him to set up, as a cue for country editors, not however to be taken "Holus Bolus," a plausable rebuttation of Mr. George's theories. I'm quite prepared to believe that he "laughed in his sleeve" at his work when done, for it is more than probable that he not only believes in the theory but is a "howling anarchist" besides. It is quite evident that they seek to befog the readers mind in the consideration of the absurd idea of a general division of property, a theory long consigned to the region of the insane by all but a few purse-proud ignoramuses, who vainly imagine that they are thereby throwing cold water upon every effort to establish more just relations between man and man. They evade the true issues presented in the quotations; that in spite of the increase of production power, wages tend to a minimum because rent has even a greater tendency to increase. They admit the truth of the charge but plead that it is unimportant in its effect through its insignificance. They say the four hundred millions, the estimated rental income yearly of the United States, is but 2½c. a day to each individual and consequently could not affect wages very greatly. But if this four hundred millions were allowed to remain in the channels of industry from which it is now driven yearly it would certainly have a great effect on trade. If the money spent yearly on whisky and beer in the United States were equally divided to each individual it would be equally insignificant, yet temperance people claim that apart from the degradation of whisky, the money spent for it would build all the railroads, houses and fences of the nation, and educate, feed and clothe all the children of the nation. Two and a quarter cents. income is not great, but $400,000,000 would build two or three navies such as the United States have under consideration. It would in one year wipe out the national debt of Canada, bridge Seymour Narrows, sewer the streets of Victoria, give us water and gas works, beautify Beacon Hill, purchase a public library, and leave a handsome margin to boom the industries of B. C. The few feet the winch takes up is insignificant in comparison to the rope's length, but it holds the cable taught. The halter strap is insignificant to the proportion of the horse, but it holds his nose to the post. But we have been merely speaking of the interest; this ten billions, the principle, is the unearned increment spoken of by Herbert Spencer and John Stuart Mill, and should never have been allowed to commence growing on this continent. Try and get this sum before your minds' eye, which has been drawn from labor and capital, sucked from the life veins of industry by harpies who have given absolutely nothing in return. Society alone, and not the individual, creates rent and to it alone it belongs. Justice can never be done till it confiscates rent by means of taxation. In ignorance of the principles about which they are writing, they insinuate that by saving a little over one half the governmental expenses a sum equal to the rental income could be saved and the evil of rent overcome. They do not dream that this would be absorbed by rent as it has absorbed all other productive improvements and savings, as the winch takes up the slack, holding industry at the tension we see. A slight respite when men are overworked, alternately with a long stagnation, depressing wages sending men adrift with dismay in their hearts, and almost forcing the weaker natures into shiftlessness, bad habits and vice. Thus we have the "well spring of Tophet" of all that is the despair of Christianity, and the bane of progressive civilization. They assert (the Colonist, Forum and the impecunious "pencil pusher," who doubtless often "wiped off his chin" at pewter mug near printing house square) that capital frees labor from the tyranny of rent. Labor and capital are not the two blades of the shears, but rent is; and they are the sheep and wool, as it grows it is clipped and has the effect on industry of dissolute habits on the individual who spends big money as he gets it and dies poor. Land values, they say, in Great Britain have not doubled in 80 years, while houses have increased in value seven fold. This is an attempted refutation of the law of rent. My dear friends, (C., F. and T. "P. P.,") you are out of your depth and floundering. The law of rent is not gorgium; if it were you might make all manner of assertions; your logic, and even your facts, would be unquestioned, and you would be patted on the back. Adam Smith led up to this law, and Ricardo discovered and formulated it. It is questioned by, I was about to say, none, but my good friends the trio above mentioned do question, and so I must qualify my assertion by the fact. A house of the same style and quality can't be more valuable now than 80 years ago. Material, according to the record, through increase of rent can't be more than double, and labor has certainly not increased five fold; but interest is much less, while labor-saving machinery and the improved power must greatly reduce the actual cost of 80 years ago. If they mean that houses have become more numerous, massive, and have improved in style of architecture, this none can deny, but, in what way does this affect the question at issue? It follows from the increase of population and advancement in the art. The land has not increased, yet its value—no small consideration then—has doubled in 80 years. It is the same land now as when Cæsar's plows first grated on Britain's beach; the same as when it came fresh from the creative hands of the Almighty, who charged no man a cent for it. Though value has doubled it has not improved an iota; for the fixed improvements of land have no more to do with rent then the houses built upon it, than labor saving machinery, steam, electricity, division of labor, increase of population, &c. Yet as all these increase and improve, rent increases in a greater ratio, though the landlord as such does nothing but draw the increase trenching on interest and leaving but a bear subsistence to labor. The monopoly of land is the great monopoly and it is a "corner" which can't be "busted." An acre of land in London is equal to 50,000 acres in most parts of the earth, and through exchange and the forces of civilization it can produce as much for through these the world is a unit. This and not the agricultural land in Britain has increased so much and apparently the value of the land on which the houses stand has been added to their value in the above estimate. I do not like to charge Mr. Atkinson with a wilful distortion of facts, for he is a great statistician; but your economists, like the priests of an established religion when attacked by heresy, are not nice in the means they use to defend themselves. Besides there have been many disturbing elements to modify the effect of the law in Britain. The extension of her market, improvement on the heels of invention, and an out pouring of her population over the earth. Now, however, Britain has several sturdy competitors in the markets of the world, and the facilities of transportation and communication (capital that defends labor from the tyranny of rent) the reduced difference in wages between home and the colonies making the law more binding of late, hence the present depression. Land values in the State of California have grown from nothing till they are three fold more than all the other forms of wealth in the state put together. So many ignorantly speak of the principles of George as though they were Communism, Socialism and Anarchism all combined, when in fact they are a perfect antithesis of these; and the only method you offered to overcome the labor troubles pressing so hard upon us for solution, compatible with the individualism so strenuously upheld by the Manchester school, and no matter from whence solution may come, to be effective it must embrace these principles, which are that all taxes shall be abrogated save that on land, which shall be assessed according to its selling value independent of any improvements on it. Land of no value would remain untaxed and the greater the value the greater the tax, as the principle in the extreme aims to confiscate rent when necessary. The field of growing grain, the orchard and vineyard would pay no more tax than the virgin rock alongside of it; and a lot on which a building stood would pay no more than the vacant lot at its side; thus enterprise and thrift would be untrammelled, while speculation would be impossible, as none could afford to hold the land except those who used it. Were this the method here the H. B. Co. could not hold land worth from $500 to a $1000 taxed at $1.23 an acre and a specific tax of seven cents. Mr. Dunsmuir & Co. would be compelled to sell their land to those who would use it, or use it themselves. The land, instead of remaining idle till the thrift and industry of the community made it sufficiently valuable to satisfy their cupidity, would be used and do its share toward advancing the industries and developing the resources of the country. It would attract its quota of labor and capital to Victoria and make it what its resources warrant it in becoming the most important seaport on the Pacific coast. Long ago several street railways should have connected Esquimalt with Ross Bay and Spring Ridge and not a vacant building lot along the lines. These and inferential improvements would turn the old fogies who have dominated this beautiful city so long, green with envy, and if the thought of it would turn them out of the city there would yet be hope for Victoria and British Columbia.

FOREST AND RAINFALL.

IMPORTANT ACTIONS WHICH AFFECT LAND AND SEA.

The First Result When Land is Destitute of Forests—Another Important Result—Beautiful Phenomena—Erosion of the Soil.

The tangle of decayed vegetation which covers the ground beneath the forest is of considerable thickness. On top it consists altogether of the decayed trunks, branches and leaves, but it shades downward into ordinary dark colored soil at the depth of a few feet from the surface. This, the decay zone of the forest, lies between the boughs of the air and the branches of the roots. In it go on the most important actions which take place in our forests—actions which affect the history of land and sea. We shall therefor have to consider it in a somewhat painstaking way.

The most evident effect of this sheet of decaying wood, and moss which feeds on the decay, is on the rainfall of the region which it mantles. When, after a season of drought, a copious rain falls on this spongy mass, the water is for a long time absorbed in the interstices, and does not flow to the rivers. Even in those of very heavy rain the water is slowly yielded to the streams; after a dry period of many weeks this sponge retains a good share of water. A like amount of rain falling on tilled fields or prairies slips quickly away to the rivers and thence to the sea. The first result is that when the land is destitute of forests it sheds water like house roofs, breeding floods after every considerable rain, while in the forests the rain is only slowly yielded to the streams.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT RESULT.

A second and less evident result of the spongy character of the forest bed is that, by hindering the escape of the rain water to the rivers, it increases the actual rainfall of the country. To see the nature and importance of this action we must turn aside for a moment to consider the origin of the rain which falls upon the land. The original source of this water supply is the sea, which sends into the lands a tolerably regular annual store of moisture. When this falls as rain or snow, either of two things may happen—the water may go away directly to the sea or it may return to the atmosphere as vapor to be again precipitated as rain. The chance of its re-evaporation is determined by the speed with which it flows to the streams. From a treeless region it rapidly escapes; in an extensive district of virgin forest it may again and again pass from earth to air, and from air to earth.

The columns of vapor, which in times of summer rain may be seen ascending from every great wood, afford visible evidence of the effect of forests on rainfall. They also may show the observer some of the most beautiful phenomena of atmospheric circulation. In a summer rain shower the air above the trees becomes much cooler than it is in the recesses below their tents of foliage. This heated air within the woods seeks to rise and escapes in great columns wherever there is a wide gap between the branches; as soon as it attains the cooler level above the moisture is condensed, and the air, before transparent, becomes charged with steam. To replace this ascending air a broad current drifts toward the emerging streams of vapor, commonly from the higher parts of the forest, where the air, owing to the elevation of the site, is cooler than in the lower levels.

EROSION OF THE SOIL.

This repeated passage of the moisture from earth to cloud and from cloud to earth greatly increases the amount of force which the rain applies in its falling drops to the earth's surface; but the rank vegetation protects the surface from the erosion which it would otherwise bring about. Even the forest clad hillsides of the Cumberland mountains, where the soil lies on declivities of great steepness, suffer little wear as long as their natural protection is left to them. But as soon as they are stripped of the garment of wood which has been upon the region ever since, in the far off ages, they came from the depths of the sea, they wear with great rapidity. The erosion is limited, as long as they are forest clad, to the stream beds, and there is hindered by the innumerable obstacles of the fallen trees and entangled driftwood.

The brooks which are strong enough to clear their beds and cut into the earth and rock are few in number; we may often, on the flatter ground, find tracts of a square mile or more in area in which there is not a single stream that ever assails the surface of the earth. As soon, however, as the forest mat is removed, the surface becomes scored with channels; they often, on the deforested surface, increase 100 fold in their length and more than that measure in their destructive power. Relieved of all restraint from fallen timber, or the close knit roots which enmesh the earth, they sweep the precious soil away toward the sea. In a single day a tilled field may lose from its surface more soil than would be taken from it in a century of its forest state.—Scribner's Magazine.

President Garfield in Congress.

When I went into congress the war was still raging. I wanted to go back into the army. After Rosecrans' removal, Thomas, who was a very dear friend of mine, was exceedingly anxious to have me come back, and tendered me in a private letter the command of an army corps if I would go. He had become the head of the whole army, you know. I very much wanted to go back, but Mr. Lincoln made a personal point [of my taking my seat in the house of representatives]. In the first place, he said that the Republican majority in congress was very small, and there was great doubt whether we could certainly carry the necessary measures; and, in the next place, he was greatly lacking in men of military experience in the house to regulate the legislation about the army. So I went in, and was immediately put upon the military committee.

In time of peace ways and means and appropriations are the most important of the committees, and the military is rather a decoration than an influential committee. But in the war the military committee was way up above any others in importance, and my position on it, as practically acquainted with the wants of the army, called me into immediate requisition, giving me a prominence in the house in the beginning that I could not possibly have had in any other way. The first speech I made was on the 26th of January, 1864, on a bill for the confiscation of rebel property. There are portions of that which you will probably think it best to print, enough, at least, to show the swing of my mind and the character of my speaking. I was the youngest member in either branch of congress at that time, as I had been the youngest member of the Ohio legislature, and the youngest brigadier general in the army.—North American Review.

Where Rubies Are Found.

The designation "ruby mines" is altogether inappropriate, seeing that no mining is required, or, at any rate, has never been attempted. The gems are found in a very rough state at distances from the surface of the land, varying from three feet to a dozen, and these tracts of free, gravelly soil, intermixed with quartzy clay, stretch in long, slightly undulating plains, skirted by ranges of lofty hills.—Chicago Herald.

The cause of so many defeats in the battle of life is because men try to fight the ought to be's instead of the what is arms.—Whitehall Times.

PICTURE OF LOUISE MICHEL.

Waiting for Her Turn to Speak—Her Favorite Sentences—No Interruption.

Instead of a type of warlike ferocity, Louise Michel is a type of sorrow, poverty and misery. A plain gown of shabby black, a limp and narrow crape veil hanging from a much worn bonnet; a face grown old by suffering rather than age; faded and sunken eyes, one of them bearing marks strongly suggestive of a brawl, are the accessories that give the woman the appearance of an oppressed and overburdened widow rather than of a bold and aggressive petroleuse.

As she sits on the platform, waiting for her turn to speak, her hands lie idly in her lap or play absent mindedly with her chin. The workings, from time to time, of her lips and jaws make one imagine that "Louise, my saint," wears false teeth. When it is her turn to speak she arises quietly and with a certain appearance of dignity. She rests one hand on the table and occasionally gesticulates with the other. That her form is slightly bent is probably caused by her position, her figure being too tall to allow her hand to support her without stooping. She is thin and wiry. Her hair is black, smooth and carefully parted in the middle. Her voice is low and moderate, seldom rising to a tone consistent with the wildness of her words, her language is good and her construction grammatical.

Her speeches are all pretty much the same. She has certain set phrases with which she interlards her remarks, and which the people love to hear and to applaud. Her favorite sentences are: "Long live anarchy!" "Down with the bourgeoisie!" "If war is declared we will march against and destroy the palaces in the St. Germain quarter." "The priests promise you a heaven if you are good and threaten you with a hell if you are bad. There is nothing of the kind; heaven is here on earth, and you must take it for yourselves; hell is also here and most of us have our full share of it." "It is not a man we wish to destroy, but the mold in which he is made, that mold being the existing form of society." All of these sentiments "Louise, my saint," rattles off at one time or another, and her speeches generally command complete attention. If any one is indiscreet enough to attempt a whispered conversation with a neighbor while she is speaking he is at once reminded by hisses and cries of silence that he is creating a disturbance, and finds it better for his peace of mind to cut his remarks short.—Paris Cor. Buffalo Courier.

Study the Looking Glass.

I read a sensible article in a London newspaper the other day recommending people to study their countenances by aid of their mirrors. As a general thing, it is not necessary to tell your acquaintances to look in the glass. They do so without being told, and every one is aware when she does her face wears an expression quite unlike that seen by other eyes. Disappointment at the reflection, for the vision rarely comes up to the expectations and hopes of the vainest mortal, perhaps, but as far as animation goes there is not a trace in the best French plate ever made. This writer suggests her readers should make a practice of smiling and talking, if not eating, before their mirrors, just to observe and correct the grimaces with which they favor the world around them. One of the first lessons a singer receives should be this, to watch her countenance while singing.

Precisely as an actor or actress studies a part before a glass, so should the non-professional society man or woman learn how to smile, to be charming, not to screw their faces into knots, or to fall into tricks with such features as nature has blessed them with. An agreeable smile, without affectation, a graceful carriage, are only results of trafficing, and they become habits quite as easily as less pleasing tricks and mannerisms. There are people who appear tolerably well in repose, yet the instant they speak or laugh change to the grotesque and worry the beholder almost to death. A quite pretty actress, who has been seen more or less in society, spoils the contour of her face the instant she opens her mouth to speak. A little control of the muscles of the lips would obviate the fault and make her far more interesting. But wouldn't this study of the countenance make one very self conscious? asks the reader. Possibly it might; yet, as self consciousness is a prevailing sin, I see no reason why one cannot add to it the grace of expression, and thus neutralize its evil effect. A sweet and gracious manner is always worth cultivating, even if it takes a mirror to bring it to perfection.—Boston Herald.

Politics in England.

Another American lady of quite a different stamp has just arrived in Paris. I refer to Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, who has been passing the winter in England and is naturally full of the burning Irish problem. I found Mrs. Stanton seated in a big easy chair in her son's home, near the Arc de Triomphe, her hair a shade whiter than when I saw her last, but her intellect as bright as ever.

"Families in England are divided over this coercion question," Mrs. Stanton began, "just as they used to be in ante bellum days in America over the slavery trouble. Take the Brights, for instance, with several of whom I am personally acquainted. John, as you know, is anti-Gladstone, while Jacob, who is also an M. P., is pro-Gladstone. Mrs. Lucas, one of the sisters and a well known temperance advocate, is a stanch friend of home rule, while her daughter, Mrs. Thomasson, wife of the ex-M. P., is opposed to the 'dismemberment of the empire.' Walter McLaren, a nephew of John and Jacob, favors the Dublin parliament, while his brother Charles McLaren, who was defeated at the last general elections, takes the opposite stand. Even John Bright's own son and daughter have separated from their father in this crisis. And what is true of the Brights is true of hundreds and thousands of other families in Great Britain. You perceive, then, that England is a house divided against itself, and consequently must fall, according to the Bible."—Cleveland L. Moffett in Kansas City Journal.

Finns Giving Russia the Slip.

Superintendent Jackson remarked the other day, while observing the variegated human tide flowing into and through Castle Garden, that the Finns were becoming a counting factor among the immigrants.

"The Russian government," said Mr. Jackson, "is dead set against the immigration of the Finns, from whom it draws the larger part of its sailors and many soldiers. Finland has a population of less than 2,000,000, and if the natives continue to come here in bodies as large as have passed through the garden this spring the country will be left without a people. The immigrants have trouble in getting here. They resort to the trick of procuring a sixty day passport, and, instead of returning to Finland, make for the nearest steamship port, and are brought to America. They are robust, industrious people, and will, I think, make good citizens."—New York Sun.

They Have 'Em There, Too.

"Can hogs be taught tricks?" asks a children's paper. Yes, they can. They have learned the trick all by themselves of taking their local paper for years and then sending it back marked "refused," and they could be taught all sorts of other tricks—except paying—if anybody was a mind to try.—Dakota Bell.

Mark Twain as a Tourist.

A gentleman who has traveled with Samuel S. Clemens says that he is a great deal funnier in his character as a tourist than he is as a writer. He keeps his associates convulsed with laughter at his extraordinary comments on what he sees. He refused to enter an art gallery one day, and threw the guide into a conniption fit by the protest: "I've been Madonnaed to death!" He told an acquaintance not long ago that the biggest joke he was ever concerned in was his getting into literature. "I haven't stopped laughing about it yet," he said.—New York Sun.

In Brief and to the Point.

Dyspepsia is dreadful. Disordered liver is misery. Indigestion is a foe to good nature.

The human digestive apparatus is one of the most complicated and wonderful things in existence. It is easily put out of order.

Greasy food, tough food, sloppy food, bad cookery, mental worry, late hours, irregular habits, and many other things which ought not to be, have made the American people a nation of dyspeptics.

But Green's August Flower has done a wonderful work in reforming this sad business and making the American people so healthy that they can enjoy their meals and be happy.

Remember! No happiness without health. But Green's August Flower brings health and happiness to the dyspeptic. Ask your druggist for a bottle. Seventy-five cents.

Sold Out in a Hurry.

A few days since a young man arrived in the city from the Southern States and at once embarked in business by buying out a cigar stand on Yates street, not a hundred yards from the Pritchard House. Ugly rumors began to be circulated about this person, who, it is said, was being shadowed by the police. He sold out yesterday and to-day is nowhere to be seen or heard of. It is believed he has either made for the mainland or is lurking in the city somewhere. He is wanted in Arkansas.

INLAND REVENUE OFFICE.

The New Inspector and Collector Appointed—Mr. Williams Promoted.

Mr. William Gill, an old and efficient member of the Inland Revenue branch of the public service, and who has lately been acting as Deputy Collector in the Prescott district, has been appointed Inspector for British Columbia. The appointment is a popular one with the service as Mr. Gill is said to be a very worthy person and thoroughly qualified for the position. He has been in the service for many years and his promotion, although slow, has been sure and not by any means undeserved. He succeeds Major Dupont, whose health, we regret to say, is such as to preclude the possibility of his holding the office any longer.

The death of Captain Goode necessitated the appointment of a collector. That office we understand will be filled by Mr. Richard Jopes, who is inspector of weights and measures and gas. He is brother-in-law to Mr. E. Crow Baker, M. P., and a very popular young gentleman. He is to be congratulated upon his good fortune. Mr. Geo. Williams, who has been acting collector since January last, receives a slight advance in his salary, and will act as deputy to Collector Jones. Mr. Williams has been in the service for some years and he is a very efficient officer. It is understood that Mr. Jones will continue to discharge the duties of gas and weights and measures inspector as well as the collectorship, with the aid of a clerk.

Mr. Thos. Gosnell who has been acting inspector for some months, will, it is believed, return to the east shortly. It is said he will be attached to the Winnipeg division. During his residence here Mr. Gosnell has made many friends who will always be glad to learn of his whereabouts and success as one of Her Majesty's officers.

"Richelieu."

The Victoria was not crowded last night as it ought to have been, upon the presentation by Mr. George C. Miln of the famous character of "Richelieu." Mr. Miln is a young actor, and it may seem out of place to compare him with Booth or Barrett, or to even think of Forrest's impersonation of the wily cardinal, while listening to Mr. Miln's conception of the French statesman; but he has an art that is entirely his own and which will yet stamp him as one of the foremost tragedians of the age. If we were disposed to be critical, we would find fault with the tone of voice, rather than in the enunciation of the words, in which some of the most thrilling passages were given. We found it difficult to catch the words, a circumstance due more to defective acoustic properties than to the speaker. The part, however, was portrayed with extraordinary power; and next to those of the stars we have named it was the best representation it has been our pleasure to witness. To-night Hamlet will be played, and as it is a more popular play the attendance will undoubtedly be larger, although the enthusiasm cannot well be greater.

Tony Cigars.

Farming in the Delta.

Mr. M. Baker, of this city, returned from a tour of the Delta of the Fraser last Saturday. He spent several days on the lower Fraser district amongst the farmers. He found a great change had taken place in that district since his last visit. Fresh faces were to be met with on every hand, as well as new buildings and fences. A large area is under crop. The hay this year will be an average crop; the grain crop on the other hand will be light, as the season was a backward one, making it certain that the year will be well advanced before the crop is ready for harvesting and the market. He reports that farmers, as a rule, are not in as good spirits as he has seen them, caused, no doubt, by the outlook. The root and vegetable crops are looking well, but it is yet too early to make any prediction regarding them.

Black and Tan Cigars.

"C" Battery.

The Mail's Ottawa correspondent says: The government has not yet received any intimation from the Imperial authorities that the request for a detachment of naval reserves, to be sent out to form the nucleus of "C" Battery at Victoria, has been acceded to. The weeks are slipping by, and unless the organization of the new battery is at once commenced there is little prospect of any substantial progress being made this year. The Victorians are long-suffering, and it will certainly be a great disappointment to them if the battery is not organized this summer. A mistake seems to have been made in respect to the appropriation. Ten thousand dollars only have been voted for the purpose of the corps, whereas it is estimated that nearly $50,000 will be required to give the necessary accommodation.

Gladstone Cigars.

The Pacific Division.

The Pacific Division of the C. P. R. for working purposes has been divided into three sections. From Vancouver to North Bend forms one section, North Bend to Revelstoke another, and Revelstoke to Banff the third. Mr. J. W. Leonard, formerly of the Credit Valley branch, has been appointed a divisional superintendent.

ON THE WING.

Movements of People We Know and have Read of.

Mr. R. E. Clarke, M. P., for East Toronto, is on his way to this city.

Sir John visits New Brunswick for the first time since confederation shortly.

Mr. Martin, commercial traveler, is on his way to the coast from Winnipeg on a trip around the world.

Hon. Mr. Bowell, Minister of Customs, will return to Canada the first week of September.

Van Bruyssel, Belgian Consul-General, is in Ottawa. He leaves shortly for Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia to make a report for his government regarding the resources of the country.

Sir W. S. Caine, Liberal, M. P., for Barrow-in-Furness, will shortly visit Canada, and George Dawson will shortly leave for the scene of his governorship, proceeding to Hongkong via Quebec and Vancouver.

Mr. Stephen Bowerman, formerly of Port Arthur, but now of Los Angeles, California, is stopping in the city with his nephew, Mr. J. B. Ferguson. Mr. B. has been over a great deal of the American continent, but thinks Victoria takes the cake for climate and scenery.

It has been stated that the friends of Charles Lord, who was last heard of in British Columbia, are advertising for information concerning him. A man named Charles Lord was lost on the Grappler, burned at Cape Mudge several years ago. He was an old Cassiar and Omineca miner.

Mr. A. A. McArthur, late of the Sunday Star, left for Cornwall, Ont., this morning. Mr. McArthur is a well-known journalist, and has done as much as most men in the province to make the resources of the Pacific coast and especially of B. C. known to the outside world. He is a forcible writer, and if business permits he may give his impressions of the east, after an absence of thirty years, to our readers in a series of letters. He will be absent several months.

GLACIER HOTEL.

Summit of the Rockies in British Columbia—An Interesting Point.

In a letter just received in Ottawa from a young Englishman working on the C. P. R. and dated Glacier House, Summit Rocky Mountains, B. C., July 3rd, the writer says: "This is the highest point in the Rockies that the C. P. R. touches. On the peaks around is eternal snow, and we are very near the snow line. The air is very pure and clear, and bleeding at the nose is no uncommon occurrence, owing to the rarefaction of the atmosphere. The C. P. R. intend making this place especially attractive to tourists. They have built a large hotel here called the Glacier House, are building artificial fountains around it and intend making an artificial lake of immense size and cutting a carriage roadway to the glacier, which is about three and a half miles from the hotel, so that visitors can go to it. Altogether they intend spending $175,000 on it this year and with its natural attractions, the cascades down the mountain sides, the glacier itself and the grand mountain scenery will make it a place worth seeing. Indeed, the scenery in the mountains is awe inspiring and grand and one can only marvel at the skill of the engineers who laid out the road through the mountains. At one moment the train is rushing alongside the Bow river at this point a boiling torrent, then across a wooden trestle bridge that seems totally inadequate to sustain its weight, then through one of the grand mountain passes with the peaks towering from 7,000 to 8,000 feet high on either side, and it is altogether a trip that a nervous person might well shudder at. The highest wooden bridge in the world is, I believe, Stoney Bridge, about 10 miles east of here. It is 296 feet high and bridges a roaring mountain torrent. There are no police here and the shooting of a man is thought nothing of. Two men were shot here last week and as you can imagine the roughest of the rough are loafing about in the small towns throughout the Rockies."

Give Them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Drowned.

A melancholy accident happened near Ladner's Landing on Saturday last, when Charlie Kent, son of Dr. Kent, was drowned in the slough near his father's residence. The father and mother are prostrated with grief, as they idolized their son, who was a bright and promising young man of twenty years of age, and a general favorite in the district. Deceased is well known to many in this city, and the news of his untimely death will be received with sincere regret by all his acquaintances.

Success Follows Success.

Senator Sandford, of Hamilton, is a lucky person. His name appears to be as a magic touch stone to everything in which he takes an interest. In the early sixties he started business in Hamilton, to which, it is said, he come to avoid conscription during the American civil war. In his ventures in that city he was a great success. Equally so have all his investments in the Northwest turned out. It is now said that he has been offered the sum of $2,000,000 for his rich marble quarries in the Northwest.
